

LEGAL EYE

Let's Talk Prospect!

Union week 2017 ran from 16-20 October. This is a week where we step up recruitment activities and ask all reps and members to talk about Prospect to colleagues in their workplace.

Marion Scovell, head of Prospect Legal, came over to Belfast for events on 16th October. This was to include an all members evening meeting to look at the law at work, the role of the union in defending and enforcing rights, and the threat of Brexit. But unfortunately the events were cancelled due to the effects of Hurricane Ophelia.

Marion said: "It was disappointing to arrive in Belfast as the offices were being closed and employees advised to head home and batten down the hatches. As the weather prevented the event, we have produced this special edition of Legal Eye for members in NI."

The rest of union week was very successful in Northern Ireland, with a range of events being run and lots of new members recruited. As Philip O'Rawe, Prospect NEC member said on twitter: "Mental note for next year's Union Week in BT Belfast - 100 buns is not enough!"

Workers' rights in Northern Ireland

Workers in Northern Ireland have fortunately not been subjected to the drastic cuts in employment rights that have occurred in Great Britain. As employment law is a devolved matter in NI, the changes to the law in GB have not been imposed.

In the last five years workers' rights in GB have been significantly reduced making it easier and cheaper for employers to dismiss workers, but these changes do not apply in NI.

This means our members in NI still have a one year qualifying period for unfair dismissal, higher compensation, and no 'protected conversations'. When outrageous fees to bring tribunal cases were introduced in GB, this did not apply in NI.

And importantly the invidious Trade Union Act, which limits the right to take industrial action and places unnecessary administrative burdens on unions, does not apply at all in NI.

In arguing against increased restrictions on strike action and trade unions, the Minister for Employment and Learning said: "I do not believe that there is a case for winding back the clock in terms of trade union reform or that such regression would also be supported by the Executive and the Assembly. Instead, the way forward in NI lies in building stronger and more constructive relationships between government, business and trade unions."

Prospect has responded to consultations from the Department for Employment and Learning in the last few years, including on changes to the tribunal system and a wider ranging review of employment rights. In both cases we have argued strongly in favour of NI maintaining its employment protection rights.

BREXIT - Prospect supporting members

Brexit will mean big changes - for industry, for jobs, for the way we collaborate and trade with other countries, and for our communities. Uncertainty is already having an impact on science, research and many of the areas where we have members.

Particularly for members in Northern Ireland there are key concerns over the nature of the border and the social and economic implications should there be a hard border.

Our role at Prospect is to ensure our members can influence decisions about how Brexit is negotiated. And what it means for jobs, investment and working arrangements.

Visit Prospect's new website for all things Brexit, including the implications for STEM, aviation, Euratom, the entertainment industry, heritage sector and food and agriculture. We also look at the position for EU Nationals living and working in the UK. The website is at <http://brexit.prospect.org.uk/>

Since so many of our employment laws are derived from European Directives, Brexit poses a very real threat to workers' rights. There have been mixed messages from key members of the government on the future of these rights post Brexit.

"So will we see our rights maintained and enhanced or will we face a bonfire of regulations?" asks Marion Scovell, head of Prospect Legal, in her briefing bit.ly/2ti60eR

From the Prospect Northern Ireland case files:

- ✓ Disabled member dismissed: A BT member was dismissed from his job for performance and attendance issues. We presented a claim to the industrial tribunal claiming unfair dismissal and disability discrimination. The case was settled shortly before the hearing.
- ✓ Long running pensions case: A Prospect member raised a complaint about her pension entitlement through the internal disputes procedure and to the pensions ombudsman. She was supported by her Prospect officer and the Ombudsman ruled in her favour. Disappointingly the employer appealed to the NI Court of Appeal. Prospect instructed solicitors and Counsel to defend her claim. Sadly the Court ruled in favour of the employer on a technicality.
- ✓ Personal injury: Recent successful personal injury cases for members in NI include; cases of exposure to asbestos, hearing loss at work and road traffic accidents.
- ✓ Unfair dismissal success: A Prospect member was sacked for gross misconduct. After a claim was lodged in the industrial tribunal, a settlement was reached through the Labour Relations Agency for financial compensation.
- ✓ Challenging performance mark: A profoundly deaf member believed he was marked down unfairly in his performance marking. Through bringing a tribunal claim of disability discrimination, the employer agreed to change the marking and review the process going forward.
